Suffolk Business Board backs devolution as catalyst for growth

The letter outlines the Board's strong belief that devolution will empower local leadership, attract significant investment and drive economic growth across the region.

Suffolk's £21 billion economy is among the best-connected in the UK, home to globally recognised businesses and thousands of ambitious enterprises. The Suffolk Business Board, comprising leaders from key sectors across the region, is spearheading a new economic strategy aimed at accelerating inward investment, job creation and skills development.

The letter states:

"The ambitions and opportunities business can deliver needs the active support of a streamlined governance structure that can help create the conditions for growth. Which is why, as local business leaders, we endorse the proposal to create a Mayoral Combined County Authority across Norfolk and Suffolk – a transformative opportunity to unlock growth, give more power and decision-making authority to local people and shape a more prosperous future for our region."

The letter highlights the benefits of devolution, including local decision-making, guaranteed long-term funding and greater influence at the national level.

"Devolution means decisions made closer to home, by people who understand our local strengths, challenges and ambitions and want to help make things happen. It offers the opportunity to create high-quality jobs, attract long-term investment – including for vital improvements to infrastructure – and transform the delivery of public services in a way that reflects Suffolk’s unique character and needs.”

The Suffolk Business Board stresses that a directly elected mayor would provide strategic leadership and accountability to deliver on key priorities such as regenerating Ipswich, expanding clean energy innovation in East Suffolk, and growing the region’s digital and technology sectors.

The letter also underscores the successful track record of collaboration between Suffolk and Norfolk, which has already attracted over £1.3 billion in investment and created and safeguarded more than 15,300 new jobs in recent years.

Councillors approve historic devolution deal, paving the way for major investment for Suffolk

Suffolk County Council’s cabinet has voted in favour of creating a new mayoral authority for Norfolk and Suffolk - which will bring £1 billion to the counties in the next 30 years - following overwhelming support from councillors earlier today (Thursday 2 October). The new mayoral combined county authority (MCCA) would have access to a starting annual investment fund of £37.4 million - funded by the government. This is in addition to devolved funding from Whitehall to deliver public services.

The investment fund would enable the new mayor to support a wide range of long-term, locally-driven projects that will boost economic growth, improve infrastructure and enhance the quality of life for residents. This could include transport infrastructure, housing and education and skills.

Councillor Richard Rout, Suffolk County Council’s cabinet member for devolution, local government reform and NSIPs, said:

“For too long, Suffolk, and indeed Norfolk, has been a devolution desert. Alongside local government reorganisation, this gives us a rare opportunity to reshape governance, improve the lives of our residents, and ensure that Suffolk has the strong, unified voice it needs – and deserves – on the national stage.

“Two weeks ago, we discussed our proposal for One Suffolk, a single unitary authority for our county. This sustainable model, effective delivery and credible voice is precisely what One Suffolk would deliver. It would be smarter simpler and better. It would be a strong voice for our county. And it would be the most effective partner for the new mayor.

“Through both devolution and local government reorganisation, we are re-shaping local governance in our county. We are setting up Suffolk for future prosperity and growth, and we are giving Suffolk that single, loud voice so that it can no longer be overlooked by those in Westminster.”

The proposal to establish an MCCA received overwhelming backing by councillors at the full council meeting – with 98% voting in favour of the motion.

Speaking during the full council meeting, Cllr Matthew Hicks, Suffolk County Council’s leader, said:

“This is a historic day. The scale and the impact of the decisions we make as a Cabinet is often significant – but there is something truly significant about today’s decision – that has the potential to be transformative for some 1.7 million residents in Suffolk and Norfolk.

“We have a unique deal on the table – one which binds devolution with an even bigger change in the form of local government reorganisation – to which we gave our strong backing just two weeks ago.

“By supporting this proposal, we are taking a bold step towards a brighter future for Suffolk and Norfolk.”

In the future, Suffolk and Norfolk will be able to access multi-year, cross government funding that would enhance the investment fund and enable better tailoring of that money to benefit local needs and opportunities.

Earlier this week the Suffolk Business Board gave its endorsement to the proposal to create an MCCA, calling it a ‘transformative opportunity to unlock growth’.

The Business Board, comprising leaders from key sectors across the region, is spearheading a new economic strategy aimed at accelerating inward investment, job creation and skills development.

Suffolk is one of six areas on the devolution priority programme. Alongside local government reorganisation, devolution will bring in the biggest change to local government for over 50 years.

The next step in the devolution process will be for councillors at Norfolk County Council to vote on the proposal on Thursday 16 October. If they consent, government will formally lay a Statutory Instrument, enabling the MCCA to be formed.

Elections for the new mayor would then be held in May 2026.

Courage, commitment and community impact celebrated at Suffolk Fire and Rescue Awards

The ceremony was attended by over 200 people, including award recipients and their guests, the SFRS ceremonial team and the following senior dignitaries who presented the awards:

- The High Sheriff of Suffolk, Gulshan Kayembe
- His Majesty's Deputy Lord-Lieutenant for Suffolk, Edward Creasy
- Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Public Health and Public Protection, Councillor Steve Wiles
- Chairman of Suffolk County Council, Councillor Jessica Fleming
- Chief Resilience Officer, Suffolk Resilience Forum, Becky Heginbotham-Blount

More than 40 individuals and nine teams received awards recognising the professionalism, dedication and teamwork that underpin community safety and resilience across Suffolk. Recipients included wholetime and on-call firefighters, volunteers, professional support staff, Trading Standards colleagues, emergency planning partners and members of the public.

CLr Steve Wiles, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Public Health and Public Protection said:

"This evening reminds us of the incredible dedication shown by everyone who works to keep Suffolk safe. From firefighters and Trading Standards colleagues, to volunteers, members of the public, and our emergency planning partners who work to ensure emergency preparedness, their efforts make a real difference to communities across the county."

Chief Fire Officer Jon Lacey, who presented seven awards on the night as well as The Chief Fire Officer Commendation, added:

"I am proud to see so many deserving individuals being acknowledged for their hard work and dedication. Without them, and all those whose incredible work was not rewarded this evening but whose contributions are every bit as valued, Suffolk would not be as safe and resilient as it is today."

The evening also included a poignant moment of reflection, with a minute's silence held in honour of friends and colleagues who have passed, including Oxfordshire firefighters Jenny Logan and Martyn Sadler, who tragically lost their lives at the Bicester incident in May this year.

The ceremony was sponsored by SFRS suppliers Motorola Solutions, Emergency One, Delta Fire and HaloTSM.

The event also provided an opportunity to raise funds for charities supported by Cllr Jessica Fleming, Chairman of Suffolk County Council:

- YANA (You Are Not Alone): supports those in agriculture and other rural businesses affected by stress or depression.
- SMART (Suffolk Music and Arts Alumni Trust): helps young people in the county access high-quality music and arts opportunities to enrich their lives.

Money was also raised for the Fire Fighters Charity, which provides mental, physical and social support to those who work in the fire and rescue sector, and their families.

Suffolk's recycling centres raise half a million pounds for charity

The Benjamin Foundation, which operates re-use shops at Suffolk's recycling centres in Bury St Edmunds and Foxhall, is benefitting from the money to provide local families with childcare, mental health, youth, family and housing support services.

The half-million-pound milestone came during the national Second Hand September campaign this year, with people pledging not to buy anything new during the month.

“The relationship between The Benjamin Foundation and the county council's recycling centres is helping us to protect the environment, but also supporting people too”
Councillor Chris Chambers, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Transport Strategy, Planning and Waste

A key part of this success story is the repair and resale of white goods. They are collected at Suffolk's recycling centres, repaired by The Benjamin Foundation's skilled technicians and sold in their charity shops, giving them a second life and helping families access affordable appliances.

Councillor Chris Chambers, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Transport Strategy, Planning and Waste, said:

“Suffolk continues to lead the way in sustainable waste management, and the relationship between The Benjamin Foundation and the county council’s recycling centres is helping us to protect the environment, but also supporting people too.

“It’s heartening to know that every fridge repaired and resold directly supports local young people and their families through The Benjamin Foundation’s vital services – helping them to be safe, become independent and thrive throughout their life.”

The first re-use shop opened at Foxhall recycling centre in 2016, followed by one in Bury St Edmunds in 2020.

To date, the initiative has sold over 603,000 items, generating over £530,000, with over 300 white goods sent for repair, contributing to a CO₂ saving of 8,736 kg - the equivalent of powering two family homes for a year.

Gemma Green, Reuse Development Manager for Suffolk Recycling Centres, said:

“It’s amazing how much the repair of white goods can impact our carbon footprint, but also go on to help families that might find it difficult to afford brand new appliances.”

“Although we had a successful Second Hand September, residents are invited to donate reusable items at any time. You don’t need to book a slot to visit or donate at either of the charity re-use shops, and they are open year-round.”

Celebrating our Kinship Carers - Family or friends who step up to raise a child

Corporate Parenting - supporting the children in our care to thrive - in my view, is the most important thing we do as councillors.

In Suffolk, our ambition is to be a fostering service that truly listens. In my time as Cabinet Member for Children and Young People’s services, a priority for me has been really getting to know our foster families – not just to hear them but to listen, and to do all I can in my role to make their experiences better.

This week is Kinship Care week, a chance to recognise and celebrate our Kinship Carers, who step up in extraordinary ways to keep children connected to their families, roots and communities.

Kinship care is when someone with a family connection steps up to care for a child when their parents aren’t able to. Kinship Carers might be grandparents, aunts or uncles, brothers or sisters, a step-parent, stepbrother or stepsister, or someone who isn’t related but knows the child well.

Whatever their relationship to the child, in that moment a commitment is made. To bring love and hope to a child who has experienced trauma, no matter what.

Kinship Foster Carers have a different start to their fostering journey compared with mainstream foster carers. Rarely do Kinship Foster Carers have the time and space to consider their decision regarding becoming a foster carer, as varied and complex, or unexpected circumstances may lead them into this role. The focus of Kinship Care is on the child remaining within their family, and this can come with complexities and challenges.

I have so much time for our Kinship Carers who take on this extraordinary responsibility, at what can often be a very intense time.

I'm always keen to take every opportunity I can to hear from our foster carers, kinship carers, and adopters, and I have heard some very powerful examples of the enormous undertaking our Kinship carers take on. Hearing these stories first-hand, really drives home the huge impact that taking on the responsibility of Kinship Care can have on health and wellbeing, family relationships, work, and other areas of day-to-day life, all while ensuring their child feels safe and loved.

Kinship Care is complex and brings with it its own set of unique needs. Here in Suffolk, our Kinship Team provide bespoke training, home visits, advice and support to Kinship Carers. When an assessment for Fostering or a Special Guardianship Order is the most appropriate way forward, our team help to guide carers through what can often be a difficult and challenging assessment and court process.

We have recently developed our 'Kinship Local Offer' which recognises not only the support available from the Kinship Team and Suffolk County Council, but also helps Kinship Carers to navigate their way to support from our partners and voluntary agencies, all of whom are key to providing the support Kinship Carers may need to ensure they are best placed to ensure their own well-being but also meet the needs of the vulnerable children they care for.

Kinship Care week is a time for us to recognise and celebrate the extraordinary people in children's lives that step forward and care for a child when their own parents are unable to care for them. To all our Kinship Cares who take on this extraordinary responsibility, I want to say, Thank you.

If you need support or advice about Kinship Care, please contact Suffolk County Council's Kinship Team on 01473 265025.

Tom's race with new foster carers

What started as a small local project in the Midlands is now a major nationwide campaign involving over 90 local authority fostering services, project managed by CAN Digital. 'The Run' is set to be the most ambitious jointly funded fostering film project yet.

The film focuses on Tom, an 11-year-old boy, contrasting his need to run - away from danger, a chaotic home life, to get to school in time for breakfast club because he's hungry - with running as a sport.

Despite the disadvantages Tom faces before being fostered – not even having PE kit for school – he's good at running and the film climaxes with Tom taking part in an athletics tournament, running in a stadium, with the support of his new foster family. It's Tom's chance to shine. Can Tom win his race? On the track and in his life?

“The message of this project is very simple, but so important – we need foster carers and we need people to foster for Suffolk County Council.”

CLlr Bobby Bennett, Cabinet Member for Children and Young People's services

CLlr Bennett continues: "This sentiment applies across the country, which is why this project has grown into a national campaign. 'The Run' is a brilliant, emotional film none of us could have produced on our own, which is why this partnership is so important.

"We have an engaging, high-quality film – which is great for all of us – but the message is loud and clear; there's an urgent need for more foster carers to step forward across the country. Here in Suffolk, we need foster carers who can give the gift of time by offering a long-term, loving home to children in care."

That message is at the core of the film project. Local authority fostering services are under pressure like never before as more children need a safe, stable home. This is combined with increased competition from independent fostering agencies to recruit foster carers.

The film's project director Rachel Brown explains;

"This whole project grew out of the constant struggle to recruit foster carers, when you have limited resources. By working as a group – which has grown from 12 to over 90 councils across the country – we've found a way to raise our voice and shout.

"I say shout quite deliberately - because this is a national emergency. Make no mistake, children's futures depend on having homes to give them a supportive, nurturing upbringing.

"'The Run' won't change things on its own, but we hope that everyone who sees it, will at least pause for thought, hopefully stepping forward to help our most vulnerable children and young people."

One thing is for sure, there are children like Tom all over the country. Here in Suffolk, if you want to make a difference talk, to Suffolk Fostering and Adoption Service on 01473 264800 or make an enquiry at www.fosterandadopt.suffolk.gov.uk

Suffolk Fire and Rescue highlights mental health support on World Mental Health Day

This year's theme, Access to Services: Mental Health in Catastrophes and Emergencies, highlights how vital it is for frontline responders to have the right support in place when dealing with challenging incidents.

Blue light responders, from the control room to the incident ground routinely face demanding and emotionally charged situations. SFRS recognises the importance of ensuring that everyone has access to practical, confidential, and timely mental health support.

Acknowledging these risks, Deputy Chief Fire Officer, Henry Griffin outlined SFRS's approach to supporting staff wellbeing:

"Firefighters and blue light staff often experience situations that can be emotionally taxing. At SFRS, we take staff wellbeing extremely seriously, not just during major incidents but every day.

"We want every member of our service to know that support is available whenever it's needed, and that asking for help is a sign of strength, not weakness."

Reflecting this priority, SFRS offers access to a comprehensive range of support services, including:

- Mental Health First Aiders offering peer-to-peer guidance
- Critical Incident Stress Management (CISM) for structured debriefs, counselling, and follow-up support after traumatic incidents (firefighters and control room staff)
- Peer support networks and union representatives for confidential conversations and signposting
- The Fire Fighters Charity, which delivers programmes to promote mental health, resilience, and overall wellbeing, including counselling, practical support, and wellbeing workshops

Reflecting on mental health challenges across the community, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Public Health and Public Protection, Councillor Steve Wiles, said:

"World Mental Health Day is a reminder that everyone's mental health matters, whether responding to an emergency or coping with everyday pressures. Taking time to offload by sharing your feelings with a colleague, someone outside of work, or a trained counsellor, doing something you enjoy, or getting out into nature can all make a difference.

"Reaching out for support isn't something to be ashamed of - it's one of the most sensible steps you can take to safeguard your own wellbeing and your relationships with others." SFRS is also sharing practical guidance from the Mental Health Foundation about how to manage stress and emotional overload during global events and relentless negative news. This includes setting boundaries, having phone-free time, living in the moment, focusing on what you can control and giving yourself permission to rest.

Members of the public experiencing mental health challenges can access local support through:

Margaret Catchpole letters on show in the UK for the first time

On loan from the National Library of Australia, and the State Library of New South Wales, the letters form the centrepiece of Suffolk Archives' latest exhibition Behind Bars - Suffolk's Criminal Past.

Servant girl turned notorious horse thief, Margaret's daring escape from Ipswich jail, her capture, and eventual transportation to Australia made her a Suffolk legend.

As well as telling Margaret's story, Behind Bars lifts the lid on Suffolk's lawless past. Discover gripping true crimes from the infamous Red Barn Murder that shocked the nation to the curious case of the Acton Dumpling Murderess. Step inside the world of historic investigations and harsh punishments, including Suffolk's last public execution.

Explore how justice has evolved, from dealing with riots and social unrest to the development of prisons and rehabilitation, supported by HMP Hollesley Bay. In partnership with Suffolk Constabulary, the exhibition also traces the history of policing in the county and how officers continue to keep Suffolk safe today.

Cllr Nadia Cenci, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Communities said:

"It's wonderful to welcome Margaret Catchpole's letters back to Suffolk, where her extraordinary story began. 'Behind Bars' shines a light on her courage and our county's rich, and sometimes lawless, past. We're proud to host this fascinating exhibition celebrating Suffolk's unique history and heritage."

Behind Bars is a free exhibition and runs from 24 October 2025 to 17 January 2026 at The Hold in Ipswich, the home of Suffolk Archives, a Suffolk County Council service. The exhibition is accompanied by a series of talks, walks, and workshops. Visit suffolkarchives.co.uk for more information.

OPINION: Help shape next year's budget

As Suffolk County Council's cabinet member for finance, I want to invite you to help shape our budget for 2026/27.

Each year, the council faces difficult choices about how to spend public money – funding used for everything from keeping our roads safe to providing support for vulnerable children and adults who rely on social care.

These services touch thousands of lives across the county, every single day. We know times are tough for many, and the same is true for councils across the country. Demand for our services keeps growing, while costs continue to rise. Yet again, we face hard choices about how to make limited resources stretch further. That’s why your input matters.

Our 2026/27 budget consultation is now open, and it takes just a few minutes to complete. Please visit www.smartsurvey.co.uk/s/Budget2026-27 to share your thoughts.

The consultation explains how the council manages its finances, the cost-saving measures already in place and the different ways we can generate additional income to support essential services.

We want to know:

1. What council services have you used in the past year?
2. To what extent would you support a rise in Council Tax?
3. What should we prioritise when setting the budget?

These are simple questions, but they go to the heart of how we plan for the future. Looking ahead, Suffolk is preparing for an important change: local government reorganisation. Our preferred model is to have just one council in Suffolk delivering all services countywide. We argue that simpler, more joined-up services would bring long-term savings – which could be reinvested in those services.

However, reorganisation will take time, and it doesn’t change the challenges we face today. For now, we must continue to manage our budget responsibly to keep delivering essential services.

This year, we have budgeted to spend £805 million. While this sounds like a vast sum, of every pound, 77 pence goes directly to adult social care, children’s services and public health – crucial support for some of the county’s most vulnerable people. The remaining 23 pence covers everything else, including fire and rescue, highways, public transport, waste management and the essential infrastructure that keeps the council running.

Many of these services are required by law. We can’t stop maintaining the roads or supporting vulnerable people. But we must keep finding better ways of delivering those services, making sure every pound is used wisely. We’ve worked hard over the years to innovate, make efficiencies and protect front-line services.

In recent times, we’ve also used our financial reserves to help manage unexpected pressures. But our reserves are limited, and once spent, they’re gone.

Alongside careful budget management, we continue to lobby the government for fairer funding that reflects Suffolk's growing needs. We push for investment that keeps pace with demand and inflation, so we can maintain and improve the services you rely on.

One of the few levers we control locally is Council Tax. Increasing it would provide more money to support the services we deliver. But we recognise the pressure households are under, and that's why your feedback is so important before any decisions are made.

Every budget decision we take has real-world consequences – for schools, care homes, road safety and environmental projects that improve our quality of life. Without enough funding, some services might need to be delivered differently. Your views help us understand the impact and set the right priorities.

Whether you use council services every day or only occasionally, we want to hear from you. All responses will be considered alongside input from local businesses, public sector partners, elected councillors and council officers as we shape the budget for 2026/27. The consultation is open for six weeks and closes on Tuesday 25 November.

Please share your thoughts today at www.smartsurvey.co.uk/s/Budget2026-27

Deadline approaching for secondary school places in Suffolk

This applies to children joining secondary school in the normal year of entry (Year 7). Applying after the closing date significantly reduces a child's chances of getting a place at their preferred school.

Last year, Suffolk County Council received 7,831 on-time applications from parents and carers indicating which secondary school they would prefer their child to be educated at from September 2025 in Year 7. Of these, 92% of applicants received an offer for their first preference school and 97.5% of applicants received an offer for one of their three preferred schools.

“It is important for parents and carers to complete and submit their application by the closing date of 31 October 2025 as this will give them the best chance of securing a place at one of their preferred schools. Parents and carers should carefully consider which secondary schools to apply for on behalf of their child. We recommend that they apply for more than one school, and up to three schools can be listed on the application.”
Councillor Andrew Reid, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Education and SEND

A completed application must be submitted for every child requiring a Year 7 place at a secondary school. For families who are planning to move house or think their circumstances may change before next September, it is still important to make an application on time using the child's current address. Further information to help parents and carers with this process is available at www.suffolk.gov.uk/admissions.

Parents and carers should apply online as they will receive an email confirming that their application has been received. If they are unable to apply online, they should complete a paper application (CAF1). It is suggested parents and carers obtain proof of postage as these cannot be acknowledged.

Before making a school application, parents and carers need to carefully consider how they will get their child to and from school. Children are eligible for school travel if they attend their nearest suitable school with a place available and meet the distance criteria. This might not be the catchment area school. To find out more about SCC's School Travel Policy please visit www.suffolkonboard.com/schooltravel.

Families who apply online will be able to log on to the Online Service on National Offer Day (Monday 2 March 2026) to see their offer of a school place. An email confirmation will also be sent on the day. For those who completed paper applications, offer letters will be sent out by second class post on National Offer Day.

Applications can be made at www.suffolk.gov.uk/admissions, where further advice and guidance is also available.

Suffolk partners with Ukrainian region of Poltava

The Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) was signed today (15 October 2025) at the XR Lab at West Suffolk College in Bury St Edmunds by Councillor Matthew Hicks, Leader of Suffolk County Council, and Volodymyr Kohut, Head of the Poltava Administration.

The agreement strengthens ties between the two regions and establishes a framework for meaningful collaboration across a wide range of sectors, including:

- Economic development
- Education, including partnerships with agricultural and nursing colleges
- Science, technology, manufacturing and advanced engineering
- Agriculture and food production
- Arts and culture
- Renewable energy and environmental sustainability
- Healthcare
- Tourism
- Humanitarian assistance

The agreement encourages knowledge sharing, business and educational exchanges, and joint projects that foster innovation, resilience and sustainable growth. It also commits both regions to regular dialogue, visits and ongoing collaboration to ensure the partnership continues to evolve and respond to emerging needs.

CLlr Matthew Hicks, Leader of Suffolk County Council, said:

“This Memorandum of Understanding marks a new chapter in the relationship between Suffolk and Poltava. It is a clear and heartfelt commitment to work together, to learn from one another, and to build a partnership that reflects our shared values and aspirations.

“This agreement contains practical steps that will help both our regions grow stronger. But it’s also about building connections between our communities, between our schools and colleges, between our businesses and institutions. It’s about creating opportunities for exchange, for learning and for mutual support.

“It provides a foundation on which we will build real, lasting connections, and we look forward to working closely with our Ukrainian friends in the months and years ahead.”

Volodymyr Kohut, Head of the Poltava Administration, said:

“The signing of this document is extremely important for us. Despite the challenges of war, we are looking into the future and, after the peace comes, we will have to rebuild our country.

“This will affect many areas – from agriculture to renewable energy. And your experience in their development is invaluable. Great Britain is our reliable partner. We are grateful to the UK Government and its citizens for their support and willingness to help both now and when the war is over.”

The MoU will remain in effect for five years, with both parties committed to reviewing progress and exploring new areas of cooperation as the relationship develops.

Several other local authorities have made or are making similar agreements with other regions of Ukraine.

New book reveals more about Ipswich’s significant Anglo-Saxon past

Gipeswic: The Anglo-Saxon Town of Ipswich captures a lifetime of work and excavations by author, Keith Wade, a local archaeologist since 1974.

Suffolk County Council Archaeological Service has published the book, who Keith worked for until his retirement in 2012.

The book supports his long-held assertion that Ipswich is the country’s oldest town with continuous occupation on the same site. Ipswich dates back to the 7th century, and is one of the three earliest English towns (the others being Southampton and London).

“This is a stunning publication and a unique look into Ipswich’s history. Keith’s passion for his work shines through, and I would be surprised if there is anyone more informed about the town’s past.”

Councillor Debbie Richards, Suffolk County Council's deputy cabinet member for Archaeology and Landscape Partnerships

Keith's favourite site to excavate was prior to the building of the Buttermarket Shopping Centre where a 7th century cemetery was discovered, overlaid by streets and buildings of the 8th to 11th centuries. The site then became the medieval Carmelite Friary.

Another highlight was the excavation east of Foundation Street, discovering the first town bank and ditch built by the Vikings. Also uncovered here was the medieval Dominican Friary, the remains of which were then consolidated for public view rather than being built over.

Keith Wade, the book's author, said:

"For me, Ipswich has been an outstanding archaeological project. I have many fond memories of the sites and the many diggers, without whom none of it would have been possible.

"I was privileged to be in the right place at the right time to excavate in Ipswich for over 40 years. This was a period of considerable redevelopment which would have destroyed all the archaeological evidence if we had not excavated beforehand.

"My hope is that this book will make the early importance of Ipswich more widely known and for it to help inform future local exhibitions and displays.

"I'd love to see it provide a source of interest for many years to come - not just for its residents but for the wider academic community interested in the origin of our English towns."

The book describes how Ipswich (Gipeswic) was operating as a landing place for continental visitors by sea in the 7th century and as a permanent town from the early 8th century.

Throughout the Anglo-Saxon period its primary function was as a port, importing wine and mill stones from northern France, Belgium and the Rhineland, but it was also a major craft production centre, dominated by pottery production.

It was also important during the Viking settlement of eastern England in the late 9th century. The Danish occupation was associated with an economic boom and the town was first surrounded with a bank and ditch.

Soon after the Norman Conquest, in 1066, the town was ravaged by the Conqueror, and many burnt-down houses have been excavated of late 11th century date. In some, the charred remains of their contents survived, including some bread rolls. However, the town soon recovered and a castle was built in the 12th century, which was demolished decades later.

Councillor Debbie Richards, Suffolk County Council's deputy cabinet member for Archaeology and Landscape Partnerships, said:

“This is a stunning publication and a unique look into Ipswich’s history. Keith’s passion for his work shines through, and I would be surprised if there is anyone more informed about the town’s past.

“I thank Keith for his commitment to the county council’s archaeological service through the decades. I’m delighted that his knowledge will live on in this book, and be a part of Ipswich’s future for the benefit of researchers and historians.”

The monograph is volume 184 in the journal East Anglian Archaeology. It is priced at £35 and is available from Script Books. It will also be available through Suffolk Community Libraries.

Ofsted Focused Visit finds ‘early signs of improvement’ in Front Door Children’s Services

The report, which noted ‘early signs of improvement beginning to emerge’ found:

- Children identified as at risk of harm receive prompt and appropriate responses with strong oversight and swift multi-agency collaboration
- Clear investment and support from the whole council for children's services
- High staff morale, stable workforce, strong peer and managerial support maintaining consistency for families despite leadership changes

The report also highlighted the following areas for improvement:

- Monitoring systems need to more reliably flag delays and support effective management decision-making
- More consistency in professional curiosity and threshold decisions needed
- Better recognition and response needed to patterns of concern when multiple or repeated requests are made for the same families

Since the ILACS report in August 2024, which found that the authority’s children’s services ‘Require Improvement to be Good’, Suffolk County Council’s children’s services have been on a transformation journey.

CLlr Bobby Bennett, Cabinet Member for Children and Young People’s Services said:

“We welcome the report and opportunity to receive this focused visit from Ofsted. I am pleased to say that Ofsted’s findings were very much as we expected. The focused visit has demonstrated that we know our service well; we know our strengths and where we are making good progress, but we also know where we need to improve.

“As with any significant transformation, we know this will take time. We are where we would expect to be at this stage of our journey, and I am confident that we are moving in the right direction.”

The letter notes that leaders have ‘Strengthened Oversight’ of the service as a whole. This was a key area for development from the ILACS report, which is now considered a strength. The letter continues: ‘Leaders have welcomed external reviews on services including the Front Door services and are acting on these findings’.

Work has also begun on an ‘Integrated Front Door’ for the service, which aims to provide a single, central point of contact for all children’s social care and early help services.

Information about children coming into the Local Authority will be centralised to enable swift, safe and consistent decision making. These changes will enable the service to consider children’s holistic needs in order to make decisions about who and how is best to provide support to them and their families.

CLlr Bennett continues: “We are using tried and tested methods and processes which we have seen working well in other parts of the country. The Integrated front door will not only make getting in touch easier for children, young people and their families, but it will speed up decision making and give us a fuller picture of the family, which will improve experiences and outcomes.”

Practice Managers from Targeted Early Help services (Family Support) have recently joined the service’s Integrated Front Door, Ofsted noted that ‘The recent involvement of Family Support Practice Managers in Front Door services is a strength. Their oversight promotes consistent threshold decisions and enables prompt transition to and from Early Help.’

1,000-year-old Sizewell silver coin hoard staying in its Suffolk home

Oxford Cotswold Archaeology carried out excavation works near the site of the future nuclear power station and discovered the lead and cloth package containing the mint condition coins.

The donation to SCCAS from Sizewell C, means that the find will be curated for posterity in its home county and will be made available to researchers of all levels.

Local and national museums can also apply for a short-term loan, so that as many people as possible can see it in the future.

“We are thrilled that Sizewell C is kindly donating this hoard, along with the rest of the excavated archive from the site, to the county council’s archaeological archive.”

Councillor Debbie Richards, Suffolk County Council’s deputy cabinet member for Archaeology and Landscape Partnerships

The hoard features coins minted between 1036 and 1044 during the reigns of Harold I, Edward the Confessor, and the lesser known Harthacnut. Though a large proportion of the coins were minted in London, many coins were struck at other locations, including Thetford, Norwich, Ipswich, Lincoln and Stamford.

Affectionately known as ‘the pasty’ - for its visual likeness to a Cornish pasty - it is speculated that it was the savings pot of a local figure, who buried it as a precaution in the face of the social and political upheaval of the 11th century.

Councillor Debbie Richards, Suffolk County Council’s deputy cabinet member for Archaeology and Landscape Partnerships, said:

“We are thrilled that Sizewell C is kindly donating this hoard, along with the rest of the excavated archive from the site, to the county council’s archaeological archive.

“Our officers monitor all archaeological projects in the county to ensure excavation is carried out to a high standard. Our Finds recording team also administers all Treasure finds from the county, including this exquisite silver coin hoard.”

Damian Leydon, Site Delivery Director at Sizewell C, said:

“It is important for us that the Sizewell C project respects the history that lies underneath the site. And it is equally important that we find a way to keep the treasures and discoveries in their Suffolk home for people to see.

“By working with Suffolk County Council’s Archaeological Service, and donating these finds to them, this is the best possible way to ensure their conservation and make them accessible to researchers and the public.”

The silver coin hoard is currently undergoing further conservation and research by specialists.

You can learn more about the archaeology discovered during Sizewell C construction at a free open day on Saturday 25 October 2025 at the Riverside Centre in Stratford St Andrew, which will highlight finds from the Two Village Bypass.

There is also a series of webinars being delivered by Oxford Cotswold Archaeology over the autumn and winter, to present findings from the ongoing excavations.

Details on all these events can be found at www.sizewellc.com

Suffolk residents safer than ever thanks to 70% increase in home fire safety visits

This increase in tailored fire safety advice and support comes as Candle Fire Safety Week (20–26 October) coincides with Diwali, the Festival of Lights (20 October), celebrated by Hindu, Sikh, and Jain communities, when homes are illuminated with candles and oil lamps (diyas).

The timing serves as a timely reminder of the importance of fire safety, particularly when using open flames in the home.

Preventing fires, protecting lives

Despite being one of the smallest fire prevention teams in the country, the SFRS Prevention Team, led by Group Manager Lee Wilkins, has transformed home fire safety delivery across Suffolk.

The growth in HFSVs reflects improvements in working practices, stronger community engagement, staff training, and targeted support for vulnerable residents, ensuring help reaches those most at risk.

“Our focus is always on protecting residents where the risk of harm from fire is greatest – in their homes,” said Lee Wilkins, Head of Prevention. “Every visit and educational session increases the likelihood that domestic fires can be prevented.

He continued: “With nearly 850 accidental fires each year across England started by candles, this week is a perfect opportunity to remind everyone to take simple precautions. Keep candles and oil lamps (diyas) away from flammable materials such as curtains, decorations and soft furnishings, place them on stable surfaces out of reach of children and pets, never leave them unattended, ensure they are properly extinguished, and make sure smoke alarms are installed and working.”

Children and young people at heightened risk

Children and young people are particularly vulnerable in domestic fires. According to the Home Office, over 350 children under the age of 11 are injured and seven are killed in accidental fires in the home each year.¹

Many of these incidents result from the accidental misuse of equipment or open flames, highlighting the need for targeted education and preventative measures.

To address this, the Prevention Team delivers the SPARK programme, designed by the Service's Youth Education and Development Manager, Claire Watkins. The programme provides fire safety advice tailored to each Key Stage, ensuring it is both age-appropriate and engaging.

Schools are selected based on local fire and safety incident data and the needs of communities facing higher levels of risk, ensuring that safety messages reach children and young people aged 4–19 who need them most.

Since its launch in September 2024, SPARK has already been delivered to over 5,700 children and young people in the 2024–25 academic year alone - an 850% increase compared with previous years.

Protecting the county's most vulnerable residents

For Suffolk residents, individuals who qualify for a Home Fire Safety Visit (HFSV) are visited by a specialist practitioner or operational firefighters who will help create a tailored home fire safety plan. Those deemed most at risk also receive free smoke alarms or specialist equipment.

This includes the elderly, individuals with hearing or sight impairments, those with limited mobility, and people living with dementia, who may have a reduced ability to respond quickly to fire hazards.

A study published in the Journal of Fire Sciences found that fire injury risk increases with age, being more common in older individuals. ² This is supported by data from the Home Office, published in 2024, which reported that in the year ending March 2024, 37% of all fire-related fatalities in England occurred among people aged 65 years and over, with a fatality rate of 10.9 per million for those aged 80 and over compared with 4.2 per million for the general population. ³

Factors contributing to this elevated risk include physical frailty, cognitive impairments, and the use of medications affecting alertness and mobility. ⁴

To help identify the most vulnerable in the community, the team has integrated with Safelincs, an online platform that allows residents or their carers to complete a virtual home fire safety check.

Based on the data entered, the platform alerts the Prevention Team to those considered most vulnerable and at higher risk. This approach ensures fire safety support reaches as many people as possible while prioritising additional resources for those who need it most. People deemed as low risk will still receive a bespoke Home Fire Action Plan.

Recognition and award success

The team's achievements were recognised earlier this month with a Cabinet Member Award for Team Achievement, which was presented to them at this year's Service Awards by Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Public Health and Public Safety, Councillor Steve Wiles, who said:

"The Prevention Team's work exemplifies the highest standards of dedication and professionalism. Their tireless efforts have a real, measurable impact on community safety, keeping residents across Suffolk safer in their homes.

“The team’s achievements demonstrate the difference that focused, proactive prevention work can make, and they set a benchmark for home fire safety for services across the country.”

Mapping project reaches major digital milestone

Suffolk County Council has reached a major digital milestone in putting the county on the map.

It has completed the Definitive Map and Statement (DM&S) consolidation project, using modern background mapping to prepare the updated legal record of public rights of way (PROW) such as footpaths, bridleways, and byways in Suffolk.

The consolidation project is the process of preparing a new digital DM&S that incorporates all legal changes since the previous issue.

Moving away from hand-drawn maps and written notes, the council has created new versions of the maps from a digital database using specialist software against Ordnance Survey Mastermap base mapping.

It has involved checking and digitising more than 10,500 individual routes across the county, ensuring they reflect the effects of more than 2,600 legal orders, including complex public path order packages.

This ensures that Suffolk’s PROW network — which extends across thousands of miles of countryside — is properly recorded and accessible for generations to come.

The updated Definitive Maps are clearer and easier to interpret and working from a digital database makes it easier to share data with a wide range of partners, including user groups, councils, developers, the National Trust, Natural England, and the Forestry Commission.

Working copies of the maps are available for the public to view and download from the Rights of Way and Access pages of the Suffolk County Council website.

Councillor Paul West, Suffolk County Council Cabinet Member for Operational Highways, said: “The conclusion of this project marks the end of many years of dedicated and meticulous work for the team and I congratulate them on their hard work.”

The second phase of the project will now commence, establishing a rolling programme of consolidation to incorporate future legal changes and addressing mismatches between the Definitive Map parish boundaries and current administrative boundaries.

Suffolk’s first DM&S was produced in the 1950s and was divided into 19 former rural and urban districts. The Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 now places a statutory duty on councils to continually review the legal record of rights of way.

The first consolidated map was completed for Ipswich in 2009.

Since then, progress has continued steadily, with the sealed legal copies now held at Suffolk’s Records Office, The Hold.

The working copies are available to view in hard copy by prior appointment at Phoenix House in Ipswich, which houses the highways department for SCC, and on the county council’s website.

Remembering Councillor Melanie Vigo di Gallidoro

Councillor Jessica Fleming, Chairman of Suffolk County Council, said:

"It is with deep sorrow that I share the news of the passing of our much-loved colleague and friend, Councillor Melanie Vigo di Gallidoro.

"Melanie was first elected to represent the Pakefield Division at Suffolk County Council in May 2017 and was re-elected in 2021.

"From June 2021 to May 2024, Melanie brought her enthusiasm and insight to the role of Deputy Cabinet Member for Protected Landscapes and Archaeology. She had a real appreciation for Suffolk’s heritage and natural beauty, and she approached her responsibilities with care, thoughtfulness, and quiet determination.

"Over the years, she made a significant and lasting contribution to the Council’s work, but far more than that her commitment to the Broads Authority and the Eastern Inshore Fisheries and Conservation Authority was appreciated by all.

"Those who knew Melanie will remember her not only for her service, but for her warmth, kindness, and sense of fun. She had a rare ability to connect with all people, and her spirit and genuine decency transcended politics. She was, quite simply, lovely to work with and to know.

"Her loss will be deeply felt across the Council and by all who had the privilege of calling her a friend.

"On behalf of the Council, I would like to extend our sincere condolences to Melanie's family, friends, and all who were close to her at this very difficult time.

"We will remember Melanie with immense gratitude for her dedication to Suffolk and with affection for the warmth and humanity."

Councillor Matthew Hicks, Leader of Suffolk County Council, said:

"Melanie was a truly valued and much-loved member of Suffolk County Council, who cared deeply about Pakefield and Lowestoft and coastal communities.

"As the local councillor for Pakefield since 2017, Melanie brought energy, optimism, and compassion to everything she did.

"She was passionate about her work and always had time for others - whether supporting residents, contributing to committees, or championing Suffolk's heritage and natural environment as Deputy Cabinet Member for Protected Landscapes and Archaeology.

"Melanie had a warmth and kindness that made a lasting impression on everyone she met. Her positivity and generosity of spirit reached across political boundaries, and she was respected and admired by colleagues from all sides of the Council.

"Her passing is a tremendous loss to Suffolk County Council and to the many people who had the privilege of knowing her. My thoughts, and those of my group are with Melanie's family and friends at this very sad time."

Suffolk celebrates five years of investment in the National Cycle Network

Suffolk County Council is proud to mark five years of dedicated investment in the National Cycle Network – a key part of the county's infrastructure supporting safer, greener, and more accessible travel for all.

In that time Suffolk County Council has secured more than £5 million to enhance the network across the county.

This work has been delivered in partnership with Walk Wheel and Cycle Trust (formerly Sustrans), the national charity responsible for maintaining and developing the Network.

Together, they have delivered improvements in signage, route safety, and connectivity - helping thousands of residents and visitors walk, wheel, and cycle more confidently and more often.

Key areas of improvement include routes from Ipswich Hospital to the Waterfront area, Nacton Road in Ipswich, Main Road in Martlesham, and areas within Woodbridge as part of the town's active travel project.

The Network plays a crucial role in connecting Suffolk's towns, villages, and countryside — linking historic market towns, scenic coastal paths, and rural communities. It not only offers a low-carbon transport alternative but also encourages healthier, more active lifestyles.

Looking to the future, Suffolk County Council is excited to announce proposals for two pilot Quietways - low-traffic rural routes designed to form part of the Network and provide an even more comfortable and attractive experience for people choosing active travel. These Quietways, funded by Walk Wheel Cycle Trust, via Active Travel England are currently being explored between Carlton Colville and Barnby, and Onehouse to Woolpit.

Councillor Alexander Nicoll, Suffolk County Council Deputy Cabinet Member for Transport Strategy, said: “We are committed to delivering a high-quality active travel network that works for every community in Suffolk.

“These schemes align with national standards and support our long-term ambitions under the Cycling and Walking Investment Strategy.

“Whether you're commuting, exercising, or simply enjoying the outdoors, we want active travel to be the easy and natural choice for everyone in Suffolk.”

Matt Barber, Head of Growth and Partnerships at Walk Wheel Cycle Trust, said: “We are extremely grateful for the support shown by Suffolk County Council, and we are delighted that this commitment to improving the National Cycle Network is continuing.

“We know that across Suffolk thousands of people enjoy using the Network each year, helping to improve their health, whilst cutting congestion and carbon emissions.

“However, we also know that for many the lack of safe, accessible infrastructure is the reason they cannot regularly walk, wheel, or cycle – this is why we are delighted to be piloting two Quietway projects in Suffolk; allowing us to test out low-cost interventions as we attempt to connect up more of our villages and communities.”

Suffolk Fire and Rescue Service joins global tribute to control room champions

Suffolk Fire and Rescue joins global tribute to control room champions

Suffolk Fire and Rescue Service (SFRS) is joining emergency services worldwide in celebrating the unsung heroes who answer 999 calls and protect lives around the clock.

International Control Room Week, running from 27 October to 2 November, shines a spotlight on the vital work of control room staff across the globe.

This year's event holds special significance for SFRS, following the launch of its new control room this summer.

Since going live on 30 June, 7,092 calls have been handled by control; an average of 62 calls per day.

For a fire and rescue service covering urban, rural and semi-rural areas, this is a significant volume. Whether responding to emergencies or coordinating rescue efforts, every call provides critical support to crews and communities across the county.

International Control Room Week is sponsored by Motorola Solutions, which also supplied the cutting-edge technology behind the new facility.

SFRS Chief Fire Officer Jon Lacey will visit the control room during the week to personally thank staff for their dedication.

He said: "Our control room teams are the unseen frontline of our emergency response. These Heroes in Headsets make an incredible and highly valued contribution — not just to the Service, but to communities across Suffolk.

"Providing clarity and reassurance when it matters most, their calm professionalism and unwavering dedication make a meaningful difference to people's lives every single day." Further information about International Control Room Week is available at: International Control Room Week

Council urges communities to act as hearing for 'ill-considered' pylon project nears

At its Cabinet meeting on 4 November 2025, members will be asked to approve the county council's Relevant Representations to the Planning Inspectorate during Examination – maintaining its long-held, staunch opposition to the scheme.

The Examination period, expected to take place early in the new year, is a chance for those affected by the scheme to share evidence, objections or support. The process is designed to be transparent and inclusive, allowing community voices to be heard.

"This project is simply unsuitable, and ill-considered. With approval by Cabinet, we will be setting out to the Planning Inspectorate the multitude of reasons why it should not proceed – not least that HVDC underground and offshore alternatives have not been properly considered." Councillor Richard Rout, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Devolution, Local Government Reorganisation and NSIPs

The county council's objections primarily include:

- a clear preference for alternative options, in particular cable undergrounding, or possibly an offshore solution
- to formally and strongly request National Grid pausing the proposals, to enable the effective consideration of the alternatives

Councillor Richard Rout, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Devolution, Local Government Reorganisation and NSIPs, said:

"This project is simply unsuitable, and ill-considered.

"With approval by Cabinet, we will be setting out to the Planning Inspectorate the multitude of reasons why it should not proceed – not least that HVDC underground and offshore alternatives have not been properly considered.

"Throughout the project's consultation periods and in this latest cabinet report, we have submitted tens of thousands of words to highlight a host of mitigations and issues with the scheme.

"Serious, fundamental concerns remain and we will pursue these and set out our position in front of the Planning Inspectorate in the new year."

32 Suffolk parishes would be directly affected by the project which would see 114 miles of pylons cutting through countryside, sensitive landscapes and communities in Norfolk, Suffolk, and Essex.

Suffolk County Council is urging local communities and parish councils to make sure that they are officially registered to have their say.

Anyone wishing to formally take part as an Interested Party during the official Examination process, must submit their details with the Planning Inspectorate by Thursday 27 November 2025.

Councillor Rout said:

"It is vital that our local communities register in time, if they want their voice to be heard in front of the Planning Inspectorate.

"Even if the Secretary of State decides that it can go ahead, this is an opportunity to have an influence to shape, change, and improve the project.

“Unfortunately we have seen instances with other projects, where parishes have missed the deadline for registration and have been unable participate in the Examination.

“Throughout the consultations for the scheme, Suffolk County Council has put local communities at the forefront of our objections and recommendations. We will continue to do so through the Examination phase.”

Gritters get ready as Suffolk prepares for winter

With winter fast approaching I wanted to take this opportunity to tell you about what we are doing to prepare residents and services for winter, especially the gritting of our county’s roads – an essential service delivered to ensure Suffolk doesn’t grind to a halt during the colder weather.

Gritting is one of the biggest seasonal services the county council delivers, treating thousands of miles of road to help minimise risk for those travelling during wintry weather.

As I write this column, our teams are busy getting ready to carry out countywide treatments throughout the evening.

The gritting season officially started on October 1, and despite the weather having been relatively mild so far you may well have seen gritting vehicles out and about on the roads as drivers familiarise themselves with the routes in preparation for when they go out for real. We typically store around 22,000 tonnes of salt in barns across Suffolk to ensure we are well prepared for winter.

The campaign for 2024/25 saw a total of 10,091 tonnes of salt used to treat 81,484 miles of roads – the equivalent of driving from London to Sydney and back near four times.

Our gritting fleet is equipped with advanced digital systems and the latest route planning software to support drivers to grit their routes efficiently and effectively.

Our drivers roles are seasonal, running for the length of the gritting season from October to April, and they are based at the various highways depots across the county.

All gritters use hydrotreated vegetable oil (HVO), which reduces carbon dioxide emissions by around 90%, supporting our continued commitment to protect and enhance our environment.

Our highway teams are responsible for gritting over half the whole road network in Suffolk, including all A and B roads, roads to fire stations, hospitals, main bus routes, and rail stations.

We also treat bus routes leading to rural villages and schools when there is a sustained period of cold weather.

All gritting decisions are based on forecasted road surface temperatures, not air temperature, as the road surface temperature is often cooler and reflects the true risk to those travelling on our roads.

We are also in the process of refilling grit bins across the county at registered locations, such as the bottom of hills, or on junctions of minor roads.

Suffolk Highways fills grit bins that are approved and owned by parish and town councils. However, to ensure the contents of grit bins are used to make roads safer, communities are encouraged to monitor how and where the grit is used and request grit refills via the online highways reporting tool.

Also, please do park considerately and leave enough room so that our gritters can treat the roads – if we can't fit, we can't grit!

Aside from highways, services across the council have also been busily preparing for winter. The demand on our Adult Social Care services always increases. If you have an elderly or vulnerable neighbour or a relative, please look out for them - they may need help with shopping, clearing paths, walking a dog or to see a friendly face.

When it comes to our schools, headteachers will always make every effort to ensure that their school remains open.

However, in extreme conditions it can be very difficult, or even impossible, for pupils and staff to get to school. Individual schools make their own arrangements if they do need to close, therefore the best place to check if your child's school is open (or partially open) is via that school's website.

When schools tell us about their decision to close, we publish information about any closures on our website.

Suffolk Fire and Rescue Service encourages those with open fires to ensure these are safe and guarded and that chimneys and flues are cleaned and serviceable. Also, electric blankets should be bought new and tested every three years.

You can find advice at www.suffolk.gov.uk/wintermatters to help you and your loved ones look after your money, health, wellbeing and safety during the colder months.

Information will also be regularly shared on the council's social media throughout winter.

Nature recovery roadmap launched for Norfolk and Suffolk

These aim to address the region's decline in nature, identify ways to help it recover and deliver wider benefits such as reducing flood risk.

Norfolk County Council and Suffolk County Council have worked closely together, and formed the Norfolk and Suffolk Nature Recovery Partnership, to identify common themes to address the decline in nature and opportunities to enable it to recover.

The two authorities join 46 other responsible authorities in England, appointed by The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to lead on preparing a LNRS. Through Norfolk and Suffolk's joint Nature Recovery Partnership, we've built a very strong foundation from which to lead, support and drive nature recovery action across the region. Councillor Richard Rout, Cabinet Member for Devolution, Local Government Reorganisation and NSIPs

Together all these strategies will form a national 'nature network', proposing actions such as the creation of wetlands, restoration of peatlands, planting of trees and hedgerows, and more sustainable management of existing woodlands and other habitats like grasslands. Councillor Richard Rout, Cabinet Member for Devolution, Local Government Reorganisation and NSIPs, said:

"I'm grateful to local nature experts, farmers, interested organisations, other local authorities and members of the public who have contributed their local knowledge and expertise to help create these in-depth strategies.

"There are significant changes on the horizon with the appointment of a mayor and new unitary councils across our two counties. But through Norfolk and Suffolk's joint Nature Recovery Partnership, we've built a very strong foundation from which to lead, support and drive nature recovery action across the region."

Councillor James Bensly, Norfolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Environment and Waste, said:

"The publication of these strategies is a significant milestone, and the product of several years of considerable work across the county councils in Norfolk and Suffolk.

"There will be many benefits to the outcomes of these strategies – primarily reversing the decline in nature.

"But their impact will be felt in many other ways, such as mitigating inland flooding risk, creating new green spaces to improve our health and wellbeing, and supporting farmers to bring new funding into the rural economy and generate employment and training opportunities."

The strategies can be found on the Norfolk and Suffolk Nature Recovery Partnership website.

One Suffolk proposal for Local Government Reorganisation gains support in Westminster

The One Suffolk plan for Local Government Reorganisation (LGR) in Suffolk gained support from politicians, Suffolk business leaders and other key stakeholders in an event held in Westminster on Thursday 30 October.

The event, hosted by James Cartlidge MP, brought together over 50 key stakeholders from across Suffolk and Westminster, providing them the opportunity to hear more about the One Suffolk business case through a panel discussion and Q&A, chaired by Kirsty Weakley, News Editor at the Local Government Chronicle.

The full panel included:

- James Cartlidge MP - South Suffolk (host)
- Richard Brame - Senior Director, Willis Tower Watson
- Baroness Coffey
- Simon Edwards - Chief Executive, County Councils Network
- Cllr Matthew Hicks - Leader, Suffolk County Council
- Will Quince - Chair, Transport East

Speaking at the event, Councillor Matthew Hicks, Leader of Suffolk County Council, said: “Thank you all for making the journey here today... and my thanks as well to James for sponsoring this event, and to our excellent panel for taking part in what I know will be an important and lively discussion.

“These are seismic changes. And with this scale of change comes great opportunity – not only for Suffolk, but for local government across England.

“It’s an opportunity for a fresh start – to design services around the people who use them, not around the structures that deliver them.

“An opportunity to cut duplication, make better use of our collective resources, and speak with one clear voice for Suffolk – on growth, infrastructure, and investment.

“But above all, it’s an opportunity to renew people’s trust in local government. To show that we can modernise, work together, and deliver better outcomes for the communities we serve.”

The One Suffolk business case outlines Suffolk County Council’s position on LGR in Suffolk through the creation of a single unitary authority for the county, delivering both local and county-wide services.

The One Suffolk business case demonstrates that a single unitary for Suffolk is the only financially viable option. After the first five years it will see savings of £78.2 million, while three councils would cost a £145.3 million more than the current two-tier system.

Additionally, one council would save £39.4 million a year from year six, whereas three would cost £13.1 million more than the current model. The business case is built on rigorous financial analysis of Suffolk-based data conducted by global advisory firm Grant Thornton, rather than using generic national modelling.

In addition to financial resilience, One Suffolk outlines key benefits to the county, including:

- Harmonising Council Tax to the lowest level across Suffolk. Based on current levels this would result in Band D properties seeing a reduction of £245 in Ipswich, £17 in East Suffolk, £29 in West Suffolk, £19 in Babergh and a freeze in Mid Suffolk.
- A new deal for market towns, including Ipswich, backed by a £40m capital investment fund, and a review of car parking charges and markets conducted in consultation with traders, businesses and representative bodies.
- Empowering communities by offering powers and funding to town and parish councils where these councils express a desire for additional responsibilities. Creating a new town council for Ipswich to enhance democratic representation.
- Building a strong, flourishing, and resilient local economy that serves all residents, businesses, and communities.
- A stronger voice for Suffolk through effective collaboration with the new mayor, focusing on clear investment priorities that maximise benefits.

Councillor Richard Rout, Suffolk County Council’s cabinet member for devolution, local government reform and NSIPs, said:

“Today’s conversations have reminded us that success won’t come from a single blueprint – it will come from partnership. From listening to our parish and town councils, to businesses, to the voluntary sector – and most importantly, to our residents.

“Because local government reform, at its heart, is about rebuilding trust: proving that we can change how we work, without losing what makes Suffolk’s communities special.

“Change on this scale is never easy. But I am confident that if we stay focused on delivering for our residents, then we can create something truly transformative: one council, one voice, one Suffolk.”

One Suffolk is one of two proposals submitted for LGR in Suffolk. The alternative proposal from Suffolk’s districts and borough councils, would see Suffolk split into three arbitrary council areas, putting key services such as social care at serious risk and costing millions to set up.

Following the submission of both opposing business case in September, it is expected that Government will put both out to a public consultation in late 2025. After the consultation period, Government Ministers will be making their final decision on how to proceed with LGR in Suffolk in early 2026.

New waterworks proposals to affect large area of Suffolk

The developing projects are designed to ensure future supplies of drinking water for the East of England, one of the driest regions in the UK. It will help to alleviate the shortage of water supply for new businesses and new homes in north-east Suffolk.

Essex and Suffolk Water's "Suffolk Water Recycling, Transfer and Storage Project" is made up of two key elements, the development of a new Advanced Water Recycling Plant, north of Lowestoft, capable of producing 11 million litres per day of purified recycled water, and strategic network enhancements that will support a more reliable and resilient water supply for the region.

There is an urgent need for water in parts of our region... but these will be significant developments and we will be paying particular attention to proposals for coordinating with other significant infrastructure projects in the county. Councillor Richard Rout, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Devolution, Local Government Reorganisation and NSIPs

A network of proposed pipelines, connecting existing infrastructure to proposed pipelines and buried reservoirs, will reach from Bungay down to Leiston and Saxmundham and as far west as Eye. The project includes two underground drinking water service reservoirs, located near Eye and Heveningham.

Councillor Richard Rout, Suffolk County Council's Cabinet Member for Devolution, Local Government Reorganisation and NSIPs, said:

"There is an urgent need for water in parts of our region, notably the Hartismere Water Resource Zone, that is holding back business growth and we acknowledge the need for this kind of water security project.

"But these will be significant developments across much of north and east Suffolk, and we will be paying particular attention to proposals for coordinating with other significant infrastructure projects in the county.

"Numerous Suffolk communities continue to experience a barrage of these large projects – Sizewell C, Sea Link, LionLink, offshore wind, solar farms and pylon routes.

"Project promoters have an absolute responsibility to coordinate with each other to mitigate the disruption to the everyday life of our residents – for example, reducing impacts by integrating transport and infrastructure challenges.

“These are not just an inconvenience to local people, but have many subsequent effects, such as disruption to local businesses, issues with access and rights of way, and health and wellbeing.”

Local communities and parishes are being encouraged to familiarise themselves with the plans and contribute to a consultation which launched on 29 October and is open until 10 December 2025.

“Large infrastructure projects place significant strain on local communities, who are constantly addressing consultations, hearings, or experiencing issues with works currently underway.

“But their local knowledge is crucial for these projects, it is the only way that developers can understand the on-the-ground issues and where mitigations need to be made.

“Suffolk County Council will be reviewing the proposals and submitting our response to the consultation – we encourage local parishes and communities to do the same.”
